Adult hippocampal neurogenesis declines in aging rodents and primates. Aging humans are thought to exhibit waning neurogenesis and exercise-induced angiogenesis, with a resulting volumetric decrease in the neurogenic hippocampal dentate gyrus (DG) region, although concurrent changes in these parameters are not well studied.

Human Hippocampal Neurogenesis Persists throughout Aging

Boldrini et al. find persistent adult neurogenesis in humans into the eighth decade of life, despite declines in quiescent stem cell pools, angiogenesis, and neuroplasticity. Over a 65-year age span, proliferating neural progenitors, immature and mature granule neurons, glia, and dentate gyrus volume were unchanged.
